I thought that The Cut Time Players were excellent. The different things they used to make different sounds were interesting as well as watching the percussionist. I liked the crescendos and decrescendos because they made the pieces that they played very interesting and help to tell the story of each song. My personal favorite was "Für Elise". That song has always been one of my favorites. Another one I really enjoyed was "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" I liked all the different sounds and techniques used.

Overall I really enjoyed the whole thing. And hope to see something very similar soon.
